

Please stop further deregulation of the media. As it is, there are not enough voices in the media, and rolling back regulations even further will create a dangerous opportunity for a few groups to control an even larger portion of the information we receive.

Surely allowing larger and larger companies to gain increasing control of our nation's airwaves is not good for the country. It is disappointing as a citizen that I would even have to post a comment like this. I would hope it would be self-evident that cutting off the opportunity for a diversity of opinions and voices to flourish is to cut off the very roots of democracy upon which this country was founded.
